Current Situation

One question came up at the meeting: “Who owns sales strategy?” No clear answer followed — and that is the exact description of what is happening at Nuanu today.

WHAT EXISTS NOW

WHAT IT MEANS IN PRACTICE

One salesperson (billboards + corporate packages)

Cannot cover the Russian, Indonesian, and English markets simultaneously

No defined sales strategy

No unified funnel, no scripts, no segment-level plan

Scope is expanding: Labyrinth, events, three language audiences

Each line needs its own funnel — and none currently exists

Bali talent market

Strong salespeople are scarce; a single hire won't cover the scope

We are not proposing to hire one more salesperson. We are proposing to launch a ready-made team turnkey — on a contractor basis, with no fixed overhead for Nuanu, on a commission model where our income depends on your results.

Sales Team

A ready team. Not interview candidates — practicing professionals with proven portfolios on Bali and a clear understanding of Nuanu's market context.

No rookies. Every member comes with active deals and a tested sales cycle. No training from zero: the first client call goes out by day three after launch.

Understanding of Nuanu's context. The team already works on adjacent projects with similar audiences — billboards, corporate packages, events. The context is known; scripts adapt in days, not weeks.

Live case studies. One of the managers personally closed three clients for Bubble Screen in the past month. Real sales — not presentation stories.

Where We Begin

Nuanu is a complex, multi-layered product, and you already run several sales teams across different lines. To make sure our team fills real gaps rather than duplicating existing work, the first two weeks are discovery — we map the product, the current teams, and their actual results in detail.

WHAT WE CAPTURE

WHY IT MATTERS

Product matrix — packages, experiences, venue, prices, margins

Knowing exactly what to sell and the ceiling on each product line

Existing sales teams — who owns what, KPIs, real results in numbers

So our team plugs into gaps, not into work already running

The funnel — inbound sources, conversion by stage, bottlenecks

Seeing where revenue leaks and where our impact is highest

Growth priorities — where Nuanu wants to move in the next 6–12 months

Aligning the team's KPIs with the actual business goals

Access — CRM, analytics, product materials, key contacts

Starting without delays and working on real data

After discovery, we lock the team's scope and agree on the specific results we sign up for. This is the entry point to the commercial conversation — no premature commitments on either side.

Commercial Model

The principle is simple: a fixed retainer covering the team's work plus commission on revenue the team brings in. Final figures get locked after a short call — once we have the picture on products and current pipeline.

STARTER CONTRACT 3 months — then renewal	TEAM LAUNCH 2 weeks after signing	STRUCTURE Fix + % retainer + commission on sales

The model's logic. The retainer covers the team's work during the starter period. Commission on sales is the primary income — that's our skin in the game. On renewal the retainer drops to a symbolic floor; commission becomes the main revenue line.

What we lock on the call. Retainer size, commission rate per channel (each product has its own economics), the length of the first contract, KPIs and checkpoints. All numbers come after Nuanu shares the product matrix and current sales data.

The terms above cover the sales team only. AI service integration and developer fees are not included and are quoted separately if Nuanu chooses to add the AI track.

90-Day Plan

DAYS 1-14 · LAUNCH

Documents signed. Team onboarded on Nuanu's offering. CRM and scripts set up. First test calls. By day 14 — a report on Bambam's current pipeline with three growth hypotheses and the plan for the first 50 outbound calls.

DAYS 15-30 · FIRST DEALS

Active outreach across all segments. Scripts refined from live calls. First closed deals — transition into the commission stream.

DAYS 30-60 · SCALE

Commissions cover the fixed retainer. Mid-term pipeline report. Expand into Labyrinth — subject to alignment.

DAYS 60-90 · WRAP-UP & RENEWAL

Final report: what sold, what worked, what we change for Q2. Renewal discussion — at renewal the retainer drops to a symbolic floor, commission becomes the primary income.

About Us

Mikhail Onchukov — founder and operations director of a Bali-based working group. One point of contact, several capability blocks ready to plug in.
